THE CATERSHARK

M.O.M Classification: X.X.X

It is a cross between a cat, a butterfly, and a shark. These three animals are partially dangerous when they are in the wild except for the butterflies of course.

The Catershark lives in France and Portugal, but it is really rare! Moreover, it is very unusual to see it and to survive it since it has a power which – according to the experts – hypnotizes you. It takes you to its place where you will be used as a meal.

It is very dangerous because it has many powers: it can fly and spit acid. It has poison in his claws, and it can grind mountains with its beak. People often don't know all of it, but only its appearance is frightening because of its giant claws, its sticky skin and viscous skin with greenish colors. To add a few details, it has butterfly wings and under his slimy skin it has striped feathers.
